Diploma of Human Resources Management

BSB50615

FOR HUMAN RESOURCES PROFESSIONALS TAKING THE NEXT CAREER STEP
The Diploma of Human Resources will expose you to a broad spectrum of Human Resource Management subjects covering all strategic areas. Cover in depth the management of recruitment and workforce planning strategies. Learn how to develop and analyze the effectiveness of performance management systems and safety management. Develop skills to implement a consultative workplace relations strategy.

Managing various HR functions comes with its challenges. It requires an understanding of business goals and needs to be able to direct the HR focus to best support these. Our long term partnership with large and small organisations hosting strong HR functions has allowed our permanent staff of HR experts to develop a qualification that focuses on applying best practice HR principles at a strategic level. This translates to a modern and practical qualification that is nationally recognised. At Diploma level, the focus is on managing the HR function. Therefore foundation skills as a HR practitioner are required.

Subject Descriptions

Core Subjects:

Manage Recruitment
This subject covers the recruitment process, including the many steps involved in vital pre-recruitment activities such as revising job descriptions, advertising vacancies, short-listing and interviewing. Learners are provided with an opportunity to demonstrate their interviewing skills in an interview and reference check role play. Other topics include induction programs, consultancy, implementing policy and procedures and determining future Human Resource needs.

Unit(s):
- BSBHRM506 - Manage recruitment selection and induction processes
- BSBHRM405 - Support the recruitment, selection and induction of staff

Workforce Planning
This subject defines the HR function, and explains the importance of key HR policies and procedures. The importance of ethics and HR compliance are addressed, before the subject moves to the strategic focus of Workforce Planning. In this section the process of labour demand and supply forecasting is explained, and strategies to retain and attract staff are identified and implementation processes reviewed.

Unit(s):
- BSBHRM501 - Manage human resource services
- BSBHRM513 - Manage workforce planning

Performance Management Systems
This subject covers Performance Management Systems including performance appraisals, recognising positive and resolving substandard performance problems, and professional development planning. Some research is required on implementation strategies across an organisation, as well as talent management, retention and disciplinary processes. Includes a practical one-on-one exercise of appraising an individual with your Training Manager for specific feedback on your technique.

Unit(s):
- BSBHRM512 - Develop and manage performance management processes
- BSBMGT502 - Manage people performance

Workplace Relations Strategies
